day, there breezed into town an amicable gentleman by the name of John F. Son (Johnny to his friends)—club plan campaign manager for the Crowell Publianing Company. He interested Mr Poor, (who has been spending all his spare time for the past few weeks racking his brain for a way of obtaining money for athletic equipment) in his plan for an allschool magazine selling project. His proposition sounded to the harrassed principal (superintendent now) almost too good to be true, for while he offered excelent opportunity for school profit, he at the same time held savings to subscribers that range from 20% to as high as 200% on newstand values of nationally recognized magazines, Also he of fers, as a bonus to the student salesmen, substantial prizes and exceedingly attractive.

Mr. Poor and Mr. Cornell movair, iron and mir. Cornell mov-ed into their new headquarters. Tuesday with no ceremony what-so-ever and with no interruption of the High School schedule.

Last spring our superintendent, Mr. Burns, was called, in his role of Reserve Army officer, to a COC camp in the upper peninsula—ob-taining a leave of absence from the kchool board here at the time. Mr. Poor then took over the duties of acting superintendent along with his own of principal. This arrangement had been continued until just last week when it was definitely determined that it would be impossible for Mr. Burns to return this winter.

Accordingly, Mr. Poor, who has in reality been the superintendent for the last four months of school, was officially promoted.

Mr. Cornell who has been a prominent figure for the last two years as a coach of no mean ability, and one of the most popular members of the faculty, has taken over the principals office.

SAUCES FOR FISH AND MEATS

A N APPROPRIATE sauce to accompany any dish of whatever nature makes often a most ordinary one unusual. The common practice of using tomato in everything, done. A good tomate sauce used or a meat louf or a dish of fish is al-ways enjoyed: however, there are any number of equally good sauces which are seldom used.

Perhaps it is a form of laziness.

this too common tomato sauce, for one may open a can of tomato soup, bear it, add a dash of this and that, and have a good sauce. As one travels over the country, means become more and me. afflicted with tomato in the saind, in the soup, in the sandwich, as a sauce on fish and meat, all good, but why overdo a good thing until we dis-like the sound of the name? The two sauces which ere always en-joyed and may be varied indefinitely are white and brown sauce—we even use these in the prep: on of ublantious tomate sauce

When preparing a brown a ce which with its flavor and color adds much to most meat dishes, the flour is browned; it will be necessary to add more of it for thickening, as browning destroys a part of the the starch—that is, changing it to a form of sugar. Add liquid desired—a cupful to the usual two tablespoonfuls of flour and the same of butter, makes a fairly thick sauce; when browned flour to used add an extra tablespoonful, Broths of all kinds, especially chicken, make most delightful sauces.

To one cupful of brown sauce prepared with any good beef stock add one-half tablespoonful of chopped onlon, one tablespoonful each of channed caper and pickle with a dash of carenne and a table sponful of vinegar.
The varieties of sauces depend entirely upon the resources of the cook, they may be three or four, or legion.

MOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichola hooting Editor, Fleid and Street or

O NH of the communest errors of the povice upland hunter is to try to shoot a guz that is too long to the barret. There is a widespread belief that long barrels make a guo shoot barder. Practically speaking. this isn't true. The short-barrel gun shoots just as hard, and kills game just as far away, as the old-fashloned "Long-Tom." The gun with 32, or even 30-inch barrels, is too long. You will do better work with 28-"Long-Tom." better still with 26-luch barrels. am even of the opinion that most standard gunstocks are slightly logg. The standard stock is should 14 inches from front of trigger to the middle of the butt-plate. My fa vorite gun has 20-luch barrel 1314-luch stock. The shortened gué -at the barrel as well as at the stock-speeds up your handling of it tremendously.

In the latest designs of American shotgans being turned out today, one trend is definitely toward the 25-inch barrel. This is undoubtedly the gun for upland use, thebert Churchil, the famous English gua maker, was the ploneer in this field of shotgun research. Some years ago he brought out his new wellknown line NXV guis, so inimed because of their 25-inch burretsand almost immediately it become apparent that the users of these short-barrel guns were to do better work in the field than sports men of equal skill using longer tubes. The reason is easy to dem onstrate. The shorter you make your "pointer," the quicker you can point it. Try pointing with a walking stick. Much quicker: Pry point ing with your finger-instantaneous. if you want to learn to shoot, and tearn it quickly, begin now with a short-barreled, lightweight 20gauge. Have it properly stocked to fit you. Then watch your scorlog begin to climb!

Just within the last year I have had a time opportunity to observe how the right gun can make a wonderfut difference in speeding up a man's acquisition of skill. a friend who has been hunting for the past ten years. Up until last summer, even with all his experience, he was still a dilserable stud Shortly after I met him early last spring he told me, jokingly and regretfully, that the only reason his friends ever rook him on a bunt was because he has hig feet and had the reputation for kicking up more game than any other shooter in the party. He finally showed me his gun. I was all I expected it would be. A 12-gauge with 30-inch barrels that tipped the scales at exactly seven and three-quarters pounds. More-over, it was bored modified and full gun. As a crowning tault it had Ellen M. Insley, his wife, of Grayof the buttstock-to other words, an "undershooting" gun. The big drop explained why he could kill an ocasional_rabbit, for the_right way to shoot rabbits is to slightly under-But pheasant, woodcock, or senues, were roo much for him. He had arrived at the hopeless stage where he was convinced that he could never become a decent shot,

Shortly after that he did me s kind favor. In return t presented him with an extra gun I had in my cabinet-a neat little 20-gauge pump gun, with 26 inch modified parrel, that weighed just short of six pounds. He was grateful, but just a little dublous about so smal

During the remainder of the sum mer and on up through September. I took him crow and hawk shooting frequently. Slowly I taught him that he had to awing from behind his target, swing past, and shoot shead of it. Before long he was tumbling the cornstealers and chickout of the sky with fair regularity— "Miscellaneous Records" and was he delighted!

Lately, during the hunting season, he shot with the same friends who formerly regarded him as the time the laugh was on them. ### der Fish Have Their Own Rod, Line and Bail.

Angier 6sh have a ministure rod with line and balt attached to the top of the head. Found in the greatten of the head. Found in the great-est depths worked with a trawl, damy are small, but the chief part of their bodies is the mouth. They evidently obtain their food by wait-ing for some smaller creature to seep at the permanent "bait," which hangs temptingly at the end of their rod, for most of their other ergans, such as fine eyes, and tall, appear to be useless. But in a world blacker than the darkest might how do their prey find their-

On the other hand, says Tit-Bits Magazine, we find an angler fish developed in the opposite way. Its fins are well adapted for swimming, and the red has dwindled, showing that as the creature depends more and more upon its swimming powers for centuring food so the rod and balt

The sack-throated whip-tail is hideous. One specimen was six test in length, and had a body two feet long with a huge mouth, ever which were a pair of pin-point eyes, the remainder of its length being a whip-like tail. Several specimens have been taken dead on the surface, their bodies each containing a fish practically the same size as the hunter. Live specimens have been obtained at a depth of 1,000

Trawls used at great depth are necessarily small, and the objects brought to the surface are. In consequence, not large, but it is probable that in those sinister depths there are other dah as huge as they are ugly.

-Straiged-With-Homes Heir-Great quantities of human hair orted into this country up to a few years ago, to be used in the manufacture of hair nets to be worn by the American women. The hair came from China and Durope, but when the "bob" came into fashion the demand for hair note declined to such an extent that the shipments almost reached the zero point. But the hair is still coming in limited quantities, especially the Chinese bair, for an entirely different use. It is used for straining oil in the refineries. This process takes place under pressure and all of the materials which have been generally-made use of -have been found to be unsatisfactory. They are often too frail or too coatly.

Weight of Water

The weight of fresh water is about 624 pounds a cubic foot. Acding to the principle of Archim edes, the lifting effect on a submerged body is equal to the weight of the displaced liquid, and any object weighing more than 62.4 pounds a cubic foot will sink in fresh water. Ben water is somewhat denser than fresh water, owing to its salin ity, weighing about 64 pounds a cuble foot at the surface, and about 69 pounds a cubic foot in the despest known places. Any object weigh-ing more than 60 pounds a cubic foot will sink to the bottom in such water,

Uncle Sam Paid France

France received from the United States all of the money which was borrowed during the time of the American Revolution. This debt was discharged between 1791 and 1795 by money borrowed in Holland. The latter debt was finally paid Holland in the early part of the Nineteenth century. The money borrowed from France was borrowed between the years 1778 and 1782. The interest on these leans was forgiven until 1785, and in fact little interest was paid until 1790.—Washington Star

"HROUGH a WOMAN'S

COME OUT OF THE HEN COOP!

A his wife to let him out of a hen coop! Or that is what it amounts to. What he is actually suing for is the return of the title his home, since it is his althat over to her which resulted in his having to live with the chick-ens. No sooner had he transferred the house to her, he mays, then she put him out of it and made him live in the hen conp.

How, you might ask, can any woman make any man live in a bec coop? We forgot to state that the husband in question is a seventy eight-year-old preacher, and the woman he married thirty-five. In-cidentally, a younger man is involved whom he is guing for allenstion of affections,

But even at seventy-eight, you will insist, a man can come out of a hen coop and assert his rights to his own house. "And a man who at that age had ambitton enough to marry a young wife," said the first woman to whom I put this unique case, "you'd think he'd have spuni chough to see that no one put him out of his own house. If he was no helpless as that, what he wanted was a nurse, and not a wife. Why didn't he him one instead of marrying her? Then the couldn't have put him out!"

History would indicate that ob men before have had the "auth-tion" to marry young wives, and while they have not all landed in the hen coop, frequently that her the han coop, frequently seemed to be the said of M
